

Information Regarding Operation of Steam Train Mary Ann

During our annual shutdown for safety inspection and essential maintenance, it has been found that some components require unforeseen work to allow Mary Ann to continue operations into the future.

Unfortunately, this will require a longer than expected time frame for the restoration of normal Mary Ann operations and we will be unable to begin operations beginning in March as originally planned.

At this stage the required time for repairs is indeterminate, so MCWS suggest that those wishing to travel on the Mary Ann, continue to monitor our Facebook page and web site for further information.

Please be advised that our rail museum operates every week from Monday to Thursday, and during this time visits to the old goods shed on Wednesdays and Thursdays between 8am and 12pm to witness the work progressing would be most welcome.

We apologise for the disruption and share in the disappointment of many, but the safe operation of Mary Ann must take priority.

Thank you to all our supporters and we assure you that normal operations will resume as soon as possible.
